The University of California in San Diego (UCSD) announced that it will offer a new course starting next year: "Transnational Korean studies."

University officials said the course was made possible by a five-year grant of nearly $600,000 they received from the Academy of Korean Studies' (AKS) Korean Studies Promotion Service (KSPS), an organization supported by the Korean Ministry of Education.

The university has continuously shown interest in Korean studies offering four to five new Korea-related courses each year, ranging from politics and history to sociology and culture.
